We urge adoption of in-stream flow objectives for San Joaquin River of at least 60% of unimpaired flow. Allowing these flows will greatly improve balance between environmental requirements and those of agricultural and residential users.

Every California water user must contribute to the restoration of river flows through the Delta and San Francisco Bay. Maintaining healthy estuaries and rivers takes precedence over the ravenous thirst of agriculture in the desert regions of Southern California, particularly vast nut crops in arid areas.

Thank you,

David Hayes
