

From: Janelle Ghorso
To: commentletters
Subject: Water
Date: Friday, October 28, 2016 2:37:35 PM

---

The almond farmers in California are flooding their crops with thousands of gallons of precious water in order to make millions of dollars. Bigalow and McClintock are just fine with this, even if it kills off species.

It's time to consider the consequences, not just the money.

I live in the foothills. I conserve, because I am not selfish. I care about the survival of all species and my own need for water. Almonds are good, but I can live without them. (They have become too expensive anyway).

I'm a voter and I'm not voting for the water grabbing politicians.

Stop the water grab for special water wasters in California.

Sincerely,

Janelle Ghorso

Tuolumne County voter.

Sent from Samsung Mobile