Parker Thaler,

Pacific Power should have to relicense their Klamath River dams. Before KBRA, the company wanted to relicense them, but when it found out how expensive and how much of a hassle it was, Pacific Power decided to let the taxpayers fund dam removal. This is not right.

Under no circumstances should the dams be removed. If necessary, the utility should install fish ladders and at its own expense. Also, state and federal governments should not erect impossible hurdles to relicensing.

Thank you for your time and consideration.
